

Susan Merrill
iMOM Program Director

As a mother of five children ages 12-17, iMOM program director Susan Merrill knows the joys and challenges of motherhood firsthand. She uses that experience to shape iMOM's outreach to women everywhere.

"Being a Mom is extremely gratifying, but it's also extremely demanding," Susan says. "It is my hope that iMOM will give mothers the encouragement and information they need to meet those demands and find even more joy in mothering."

Susan oversees development of programs for iMOM and iMOM.com. She has directed the creation of iMOM's drive-time CDs, Espresso Minutes and the Pillow Talk journal – all programs geared toward helping mothers raise well-rounded children growing in wisdom, health, purpose, and relationships.

Susan received her bachelor of science degree in finance from the University of Florida and then spent six years at Bank of America as a corporate lending officer and regional marketing manager. She and her husband, Mark, and their children, live in Tampa, Fla.
